

What do you say to a synthesizer player who's fed up with playing only one note at a time?

You tell him that you've got a four-voice synthesizer that's truly polyphonic and that it's expandable to eight voices; and that the basic elements of the instrument are called Synthesizer Expander Modules that are actually mini-synthesizers in themselves.

You also might want to mention that the unit is built to travel as well as to produce the cleanest, most versatile effects in the studio; and that Stevie Wonder, Herbie Hancock, Joe Zawinul and Tomita, among others, have already got the message.

And you can also tell him that the name is:

Oberheim

See your local dealer or write:

Oberheim Electronics
1549 9th Street
Santa Monica, CA 90401